The President's Message.

We commented, at some length, on Saturday, upon those portions of the President's Message which relate to Texas, Oregon and the Tariff, the three most important topics dwelt upon in that document. We resume the subject to-day, with tions. The Sub-Treasury of Mr. Van Buren, by Mr. Polk under a new name and in a different Mr. James K. Polk was either author, or sponsor. Under this system, says the Message, "the public money is converted into banking capital and used or loaned out for the private profit of bank stockholders." Mr. Polk, to make the story complete, Secretaries of the Treasury.

money, without power to make loans, or to issue paper. The money "of the people," he says, should be kept in the treasury "of the people," and in the cust dy of agents "of the people," and money" in "their own Treasury," is to concede that "the people" are incompetent to self-governmout. When we look back at the events of the last tow years and remember how seldom "the propless have seen any of "their own money;" how little they have had to do with its management; and how notoriously unfaithful many of Meeting. It will be seen that a good deal of work their "a gents" have been, (as witness Swartwout, | was "chalked out," and it only remains for those Hoyt, Boyd. Especially do we hope to see the suggestions of a reduction and graduation in the prices of such portions of the Public Lands as have remained unsold in the marker for a certain length of time; the continuance of a I beral policy of pre-emptions, and the sale, under certain reservations, of the Mineral Lands, promptly carried what we said, and we are still at a loss to con out by Congress.

People, instead of all being drawn from the earnings of the few, Mr. Polk cries out for an increase of the Postage tax so that the entire burden may again be thrown upon the North and West! Such is a specimen of the justice and fair dealing which we are to look for from a Southern administration. But Congress, we trust, will stop Mr. Polk's attempt to "advance backwards." Or if Congress falter, the People, at any rate, will block the game.

Reported for the Daily Sentinel. PUBLIC MEETING.

At a meeting of the citizens of Milwaukie, held pursuant to adjournment at the Trustees' Hall, in the West Ward, on Friday evening. Dec. 12, 1845, L. W. WEEKS in the Chair, and I. A. LAPHAM and A. W. HATCH acting as Secretaries-the Committees appointed at a previous meeting being cal ed on to make report.

Mr. P Potter, from the committee appoint ed to consider several matters having retercommendation that they should be favorably acted ence to the prevention of fires in Milwaukie, submitted a report in writing, embracing the

- 1. The safe-keeping of ashes.
- 2. The secure putting up of stoyes and stove-pipes.
- 3. The importance of Fire Wardens doing their duty faithfully.
- 4. The want of an alarm bell, and of a person to ring it promptly in cases of fire, and also
- 5. Want of a night watch.
- 6. Importance of convenient and comfortable engine houses.
- 7. Deficiency of fire buckets.

8. Of fire limits, or prohibition of the erection hereafter of wooden buildings in certain

9. Of a Reservoir in the East Ward. 10. Licensing merchants to keep gun powder, and the prohibition of its sale by persons not licensed.

Recreations in Natural History. BY HORACE MAYIERW.

The following anecdotes have been collected logether, from the belief that they are too wonderful to be last. I hey illustrate principally the instinct of animals. There cannot be a doubt of their authenticity, for we assure our readers that they nave appeared previously, with a few exceptions, in the country newspa-

The Turtle is naturally of a singgish temperament, but when roused it has been known o do fearful things. Gunter the great Swiss naturalist, tells an anecdote of one that is quite d.amatic in its pathos. He had presented a very fine specimen of a Turtle to the Lord Mayor, who sent it to the Lundon Tave in to be taken care of. The day before the 9th of November, this turtle was allowed to walk up and down the pavement in front of the tave in ; but to prevent people running over it, a label was hong round its neck, on which was written-Will be killed to-morrow" This see ned to prey very heavily upon the turtle's mind, for it waddled to and fro, evidently in a very excited state, and a tear was seen distinctly to course down its left cheek, and bedew the surre unding flagsiones. The poor creature rolled about with increasing uneasiness every minute, till the Lort Mayor's State carriage happening to pass, it slipt off the pavement, and fell deliberately under the fore wheels of the cumberous vehicle. It was piel ed up a shapeless mass of hopeless callipash and mutilated cattippee. 'There is no doubt,' says Grunter, 'that this was a premeditated act of suicide, for it was proved afte, wards that nothing but the immense have crushed the shelt. Horses have been known to predict a frost by going to the blacksmith's the day before to be rough shed. Franconitells a story of a mare who would never perform on the stage unless she was on the side of the French Her spirit of nationality was such, that if she was carry-tog an Englishman or an Austrian, she would invariably throw him and then run over to the side of the emperor. In this way she has often thrown Blucher and the Duke of Wellington Napoleon hearing of this extraorninary trait of patriotism in a horse, went expressly to the Cerque, and having witnessed the fact with his own upperial eyes, offered Franconi a whole regiment of cavalry in exchange for the mare but the French Duerow, to his credit let it be said, won'd not part with her. Napoleon was piqued, but afterwards decorated the mane with Grand Gross of the Legend of Honor,

Pigs have been taught to spell. A singular tuedote is told of one, that indubitably proves the force of early habit in animals general y but in a pre especially. A learned sow, that was called 'Bacon,' would always spell Vauxhall with a W. This was always a matter of wonderment, till it was ascertained that she had been born on a market day in Smithfied market: The invererate misuse of the W at once confirmed her Cockney origin.

Le Vaillant, the African traveller, tells some wonderful stories about the instruct of the boboon. He travelled with one for a long time as a guide. Its name was Snees. He knew the shops where the best sherbet was to be got. Being short of butter once, Snees brought him a number of cocoa-ams, which he had thrown about till the milk inside had becomed churned He watched by his master's side every night killing the musquetoes and fleas, which swarm about the banks of the Nile. He often relped Le Vaillant in unrolling the muminies, and racking up his tranks. Le Vaillant bought this babo in to Europe, and Snees showed his gratitude by saving his master's life. Thieves were olundering the house, when Snees ran to the inmates were aranged; the thieves were apprehended just in time, for Le Villiant saywhen he awoke there were two genileinen at his bedside, the one with a pistol, the other with a carving knife. The day Le Vallant died, this sagacious baboon broke a blacking hattlewhether accidentally or not is not provedwhich blacked him from head to toot; but many Resolved-That the Committee already persons who knew Snees well, declare this was done purposely, from a desire of the faithful animal to show respect to the memory of

An anecdore teld by a German paturalist of a beaver, is no less wor derial than the above; he declares he saw a beaver weeping over the crown of an old nat. Soon ann ther beaver approached it, and she cried as piceously than the first, then a number of young beavers, attracted by their sobs, came running up and they all cried too. He accounts for this by saying, that the bar being made of beaver, the animals had evidently recognised in it the skin of one of their own kindred. The Social Grosbeak, a bird which is found about the cape of Good Hope, dist lays great ingenuity in building its nest, which is constructed as strongly as possible, so as to keep out the March rains. A Genevese traveller records the fact of finding a whole r w of their nests covered at the roof with bits of an old macaintosh, which they had evidently picked up from one of the frequent wreekself the What but instinct early have told these sociable grosbeaks that mackintoshes were wa-

The following is amosing, for it proves that the Pairot is not so stupid as he is generally represented. Jack Sheppard, when he had just escaped from Newgrie, beard called out in a shrill voice, "Does your mother know you're on:?" Jack was frightened at first, but recovered his usual courage when he found it was only a parrot that was hanging over a greengrocer's door.

The instinct of the Dog, and Cat, and the Rat, is so well known that one anecdoic, we thin i, will suffice to illustrate the three. A terrier and a tom-cat were pursuing a large rat down the street. The rat was almost caught, when it dodged suddenly and tan into a sausage The cat and dog stopped convulsively at the door, and looking up at the yards of sansages, bung down their heads and slunk quite terror stricken. This anecdo e indubitably shows that self-preservation is the law of nature, besides proving that the feeling of veneration for the dead is much stronger in animals than in men.

The following anecdote; is so astonishaing ported by the testimony of the celebrated Walker. Mr. Tiedemann, the famous saxon dentist, had a valuable torioise shell cat that for days had done nothing but moan. Guessing the cause he looked into its mouth, and seeing a decayed tooth, soon relieved it of its pain. The following morning there were at least ten cats outsi te MOULD CANDLES. 130 boxes now suprand a BONNELL.

his door-the day after that twenty; and they went on increasing at such a rate, that he was obliged to keep a bull-dog to drive them away. A cat who had the toothache would come any number of miles to submit its jew to him, would come down the chimney even, and not leave the room till he had taket, its tooth out, It grew such a nuisance at last, he never was free from one of these feline patients. However, being one morning very nervous, he broke accidentally the jaw of an old tabby.— The news of this spread like wildfire. Not a single cat ever came to him afterwards. It is extroidinary how the cats, in the above instance, acted like human beings!

BY LAST NIGHT'S MAIL.

Coxoness. - We have by last night's mail the first day's proce d ags. In the Senate nothing was done beyond swearing in the new Senators from Florida, Tennessee, Massachusetts, &c. In the House the first business in order was the election of a Speaker. The vote was vivu vace and the result as follows: J. W. Davis (L. F.) 120, S. F. Vinton (Whig) 72; all others 18. Mr. 84. Much dissatisfaction was caused in the Loco Foco caucus by the refusal of the majority to adopt the "two-third rule." That has served its pur-
